The Balloon Party

A 45 minute parable about using your spiritual gifts

By Monika B. Hilder

Why don't people celebrate their spiritual gifts? Step into the fairy tale world of a king, who gives all his subjects brightly colored balloons that symbolize a unique aspect of their personalities. But in time the balloons pop or get lost, and some people even forget they own one. The King decides to host a grand balloon party to build up the flagging spirits of his subjects. But Quitter Orange, Selfish Blue, Burnout Red and the others have a litany of excuses why they can't attend. Eventually they overcome their negativity and attend the party in celebration of the varied and important gifts each has been blessed with.
